Joyce was a dedicated mother raising her family while Orville worked away from home. Her passions were volunteering at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Harvest House, Senior Citizens, and Alter Society. Joyce and Orville loved dancing together and could clear a dance floor by all of their moves, vacationing, play card and board games with friends, Bingo, enjoying their grandchildren's softball games. Joyce was known for being a wonderful baker, she could make anyone's mouth water by the yummy smells of all of her baked goodies.

Joyce worked in Parsons, Kansas, at an ammunition plant from 1944-1945.

She also put her talent for cooking and baking to good use while she worked in the Dietary Department for Neosho Memorial Hospital as well as in Food Services for Royster Junior High School.
